

THE ELECTION & APPOINTMENT OF CONSERVATION DISTRICT SUPERVISORS

WHO RUNS DISTRICT ELECTIONS

In compliance with the provisions of chapter 14, title 34, Idaho Code, conservation district elections are administered and conducted by the clerk of the county within which the district is located. Elections in districts that extend beyond the boundaries of a single county are to be conducted jointly by the clerks of the respective counties, and the clerk of the county in which the district office is located is charged with coordinating the election. The cost of conducting district elections is borne by the county, or counties.

WHEN DO ELECTIONS OCCUR

District elections are held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November in each even-numbered year. It is important to remember that in December of odd-numbered years, county clerks must publish the election calendar for the upcoming year, so conservation districts that need to conduct an election during an upcoming even-numbered year must notify their county clerk of this need prior to December of the preceding year. Throughout the election process it is a good idea to work closely with your county clerk to make sure you don't miss filing deadlines or other important instructions. Contact information for your county clerk can be found at <http://www.idahovotes.gov/clerk.htm>.

Districts that have one or more supervisor with terms that are set to expire need to hold an election. However, if after the deadline for filing a declaration of intent as a write-in candidate it appears that only one qualified candidate has been nominated for each position to be filled, no election will be held. In these cases, the board will declare the candidate(s) to be elected and the district shall immediately make and deliver the certificate of election. (The deadline for filing a declaration of intent as a write-in candidate is 45 days before the day of election.)

WHO IS QUALIFIED TO SERVE AS A DISTRICT SUPERVISOR

All supervisors must be registered to vote in the state of Idaho, and must be landowners or farmers of the conservation district where they are elected or appointed to serve.

HOW TO BECOME A CANDIDATE FOR ELECTION

An individual who desires to be a candidate for election must file a nominating petition with the secretary of the district on or before September 1. Nominating petitions are available from the district office or from the county clerk, and must be in the form provided by the county clerk. The district must verify the qualifications of the nominees and, not more than 7 days after the close of filing, certify to the county clerk the nominees to be placed on the ballot.

Write-in candidates must file a declaration of intent with the conservation district not less than 45 days before the day of the election.

AFTER THE ELECTION

Following an election the county clerk will certify to the conservation district the names of the elected supervisors. The district then issues a certificate of election to each elected supervisor. District should notify the soil and water conservation commission of election results.

Before a supervisor enters upon the duties of his office, he must take an official oath before a notary public. The oath must be taken and filed with the county recorder within ten (10) days after the officer has notice of his election or appointment, or before the expiration of fifteen (15) days from the commencement of his term of office, when no such notice has been given.

A certificate of election and an oath of office are attached.

TERM OF OFFICE

A supervisor's term of office is 4 years, and begins on the first day of January following the election.

NUMBER OF SUPERVISORS ON THE CONSERVATION DISTRICT BOARD

Conservation district law provides districts with only two options relative to the number of supervisors who may serve on the district's governing board at any one time: 1) the governing body may consist of five (5) supervisors, or; 2) after completing the process described in statute for increasing the number of supervisors, they may be governed by a body consisting of seven (7) supervisors (Section 22-2721, IC). Statute does not authorize the governing body of a district to consist of any other number of supervisors. Furthermore, after a district has increased the number of supervisors from 5 to 7 no authorization exists in statute for the district to reverse the process and return to a 5 supervisor board.

Vacancies on a district board do not change the fact that the board is either a 5 or a 7 supervisor body, so a quorum will still consist of either 3 or 4 supervisors, respectively.

A change in legislation would be necessary in order for districts to have the authority to structure their boards in ways different from those described above.

HOW MID-TERM VACANCIES ON THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS ARE FILLED

Board vacancies occurring mid-term may be filled by appointment, accomplished by a vote of the majority of the supervisors. The conservation district shall issue a certificate of appointment to the new supervisor and inform the soil and water conservation commission of the appointed supervisor's name. Within ten (10) days after a supervisor has been notified of his appointment he must take an oath of office before a notary public.

A certificate of appointment and an oath of office are attached.

The term for a supervisor appointed to fill a vacancy begins as soon as the district board approves such appointment by majority vote. Appointments are made for either the unexpired term or for a full term depending upon how the supervisors' vote when filling the vacancy. If the board has appointed the new supervisor to a 4 year term that supervisor shall serve his 4 year term and whatever time passes between the end of those 4 years and the next election.

RECALL OF DISTRICT SUPERVISORS

District supervisors can be recalled. The provisions and procedures to recall elected officials are outlined in Title 34, Chapter 17, Idaho Code.

ASSOCIATE SUPERVISORS

From the Supervisor’s Handbook: “Associate supervisors are optional and informal positions whereby interested members from the community serve as advisors and representatives to the board. Associates are not allowed to vote on board decisions but they can augment the knowledge and experience of the supervisors and assist, as requested, with district programs....The associate position is often a stepping stone to board supervisor.”

The “associate supervisor” has no legal standing, responsibility, or authority under conservation district law. They are involved with districts at the pleasure of the board of supervisors.

If a conservation district board chooses to formalize their associate supervisor positions by voting individuals into the position, they are free to do so. However, such action by the board has no bearing on the fact that associates have none of the responsibilities or authorities of supervisors—they don’t count towards a quorum, cannot vote, etc.
