Recent Projects

PCSRF & IIJA – Big Cedar Culvert

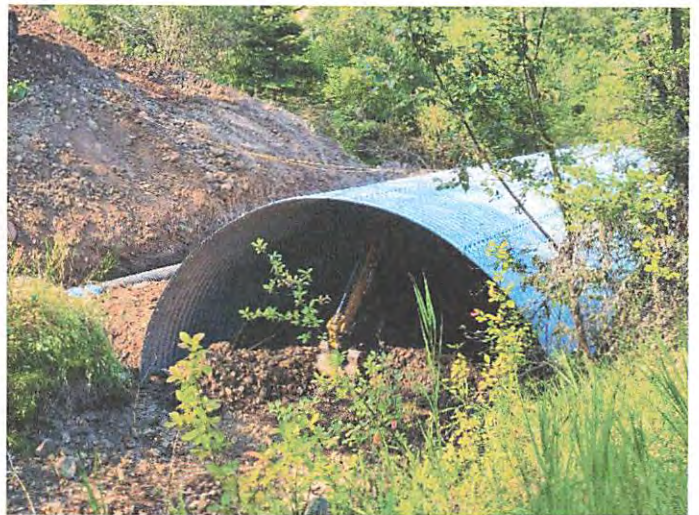

Goals:

The existing culvert at the mouth of Big Cedar, a tributary to Clear Creek in the Middle Clearwater River watershed, was a full barrier to juvenile salmonids and a seasonal barrier to adult salmonids due to a four-foot drop at the outlet during adult upstream migration. This four-foot drop, along with the velocities inside the culvert during high flows makes it impassable for most of the adults returning to Big Cedar Creek. Habitat and private property immediately upstream have been very impacted by flooding caused by the undersized culvert.

Actions/Results:

Project started in April of 2024. Geotechnical analysis was performed as part of the design to assure there was adequate soils for the footing on the pipe arch culvert. The designs were accepted by NOAA fisheries. Permitting, ESA compliance and Cultural Resource were completed. An off-site engineer was hired to design and monitor the installation of the culvert.

A 24-foot span arch pipe culvert was designed to replace the culvert on Big Cedar Creek near the mouth where it enters Clear Creek. The purpose was to replace the failing, undersized culvert and to allow for fish passage on 8 miles of Big Cedar Creek. The project was completed in August of 2024, with monitoring being ongoing.
